“ *My name is Brian Burke. I am deeply saddened for your family's loss. I am proudly a coworker of Larry's for the past few years.Although to me he was a proud man of few words,and a light hearted disposition. That's not how I discribe him as a craftsman.His work spoke volumes and his abilities were boundless.Larry didn't have the luxury of cherrypicking the good jobs, because when your that good they need you for the hard stuff. The way you recognize a true craftsman is that they make it look easy. Larry did that every day! The bright side if there could ever be one? Is that his legacy goes on. Future generations and in some cases people in the next century will enjoy the boats that Larry worked on.If it is said that the sum of a man's life is his accomplishments, then I think larry's life althought to short! was FULL.
It is my honor to have known him.
My privilige to have worked with him.
And my sadness in his loss.
I guess God needs a new boat!*

“ Words can’t express the way I feel right now . I miss my Uncle Larry more than anything . He was not only my uncle, he was my God father as well. I will forever miss seeing you come home from work , hearing your mother greeting you “HeIIIIllo Larry” and your response “Moeeeeeeee” waiting 15 minutes for you to look at the menu before we order out , even though you knew the menu like the back of your hand . Knocking on the bathroom door and hearing your voice “be out in a minuteeeee” If I could bring back time I would wait forever and a day just so you could look at that menu and still be here with us right now . Our house will NEVER be the same again since the night you left us . Lar-bone, you are truly missed . I love you forever and you will forever life through me !!!!! Love always , your one and only niece, Jennifer “ Larry was the finest craftsman I ever met. His abilities construct in metals and wood were always obvious in their excellence.

His life was an example that affect all that new him. We never know what plan lies before us, but Larry obviously made us all realize to make every day worthwhile and let everyone know that he cared. His life will live on in the many that were fortunate enough to know him. LP, rest in the peace you deserve
